

Bradley D. Jackson

Partner / National Chair, Energy, Environment & Natural Resources Practice Group

Brad Jackson is a Partner and National Chair of the Energy, Environment & Natural Resources Practice Group. Brad advises regulated and nonregulated energy companies in the areas of utility rate and policy making, the regulatory and transactional aspects of generation and transmission facility siting and development, and power plant and portfolio sales and acquisitions. He focuses his practice on energy, natural resources, water rights, and property.

For three decades, Brad has served as outside regulatory counsel to WEC Energy Group, a public utility holding company headquartered in Wisconsin, with utilities in five Midwestern states. He has also advised owners of hydroelectric facilities and systems on a myriad of energy and natural resource issues. Brad also assists various energy clients with legislative research and drafting.

Brad started his legal career as a trial attorney with the Land and Natural Resources Division of the United States Department of Justice, serving in the Honors Program 1986-1988.
