About Dan

Nationally recognized, experienced toxic exposure defense

Dan Long defends manufacturers, premises owners and contractors in complex multiparty toxic exposure personal injury and wrongful death litigation. He has represented clients in a wide range of industries involving a variety of chemicals and particulates, including:

- Automotive and automotive parts manufacturers
- Energy providers
- Industrial and residential construction materials manufacturers and suppliers
- Chemical manufacturers
- Glass products manufacturers
- Pharmaceutical manufacturers
- Personal hygiene manufacturers
- Food manufacturers

His experience serving as local, regional and national counsel in cases gives him unique insight into the needs of the client and the demands of various types of litigation. This experience allows Dan to understand how to provide the best possible defense in the most efficient and economical manner possible. Dan has solved the problems of his clients in some of the most complex and ever evolving types of litigation possible.

Dan is in the law school recruiting chair and the summer associate program chair for the Indianapolis office.
