About Nathan

Collaborative, pragmatic, goal-oriented finance and business guidance

Nathan Fronk assists clients with public finance and commercial finance matters, particularly tax-exempt bond transactions for 501(c)(3) organizations. He serves as bond counsel, underwriter's counsel, borrower's counsel and bank counsel on a variety of taxable and tax-exempt bond transactions, including 501(c)(3) bonds for clients such as:

- Independent colleges and universities, and private elementary and secondary schools, including charter schools
- Health care systems
- Senior living providers and other nonprofits
- Industrial development bonds
- Multifamily housing revenue bonds

Nathan works as a trusted advisor and advocate in partnership with his clients to help them achieve their goals. He applies his extensive knowledge of various financing structures, actively listens to his clients' goals, concerns and objectives, and distills complex financial structures and decisions to achieve his clients' desired outcome while helping to protect their interests.

Nathan also uses his knowledge of the experience and resources of the firm to connect clients to the Quarles lawyers best suited to help drive their success.
