About Ray

Methodically defending and advising manufacturers in products and commercial litigation

Ray Jamieson is national litigation counsel for one of the world's largest manufacturers of mineral processing equipment and one of the largest manufacturers of material handling equipment, in addition to other market-leading clients. He represents industrial equipment manufacturers in:

- Product liability defense
- Commercial disputes
- Intellectual property (IP) litigation

Clients rely on Ray to help manage risk in all its forms, from concept to design to litigation. He is a vigorous advocate for their products and people, in litigation and at the negotiating table.

Experience in Action

- Defending manufacturers of industrial equipment in multiple sectors, including construction, agricultural, mining, crushing, screening, material handling, metals processing and recycling, pyro processing, filtration and flotation, and bulk mineral processing and conveying.
- Preparing and deposing technical experts in a wide variety of fields, including product design, manufacture, quality assurance, marketing and sales, service, maintenance, repair, accident reconstruction, human factors, biomechanics, design engineering and industrial safety.
